

Our Projects

Rose Breast Health - Empowering African Women Against Breast Cancer

While progress has been made globally in breast cancer survival rates, our African community continues to face significant challenges:

- Alarming 80% late-stage diagnosis within our African community.
- A 40% survival rate, significantly lower than the global average of over 90%.

Rose Breast Health is a non-profit organization with the objective of enhancing breast cancer outcomes for African women. Our mission involves promoting breast health and facilitating essential access to breast healthcare services. We are committed to addressing the persistent and deeply rooted barriers to early detection faced by African women, through transformative initiatives.

All raised funds contribute to transforming our initiatives into impactful realities, advancing projects that envision a future where breast health is a priority and accessible for all. Our initiatives focus on:

- Empowering Women: Breaking down cultural barriers and providing knowledge.
- Building Capacity: Empowering individuals and communities for lasting impact, ensuring prioritized and accessible breast health.
- Enhancing Access: Establishing healthcare programs that are accessible to all.

Join us in creating a future where breast health is a universal priority, and every individual has equitable access to comprehensive breast healthcare.

Future Outlook

Our vision revolves around addressing the evolving needs of our communities, aspiring to a future where every African woman has access to comprehensive breast healthcare services, preventing unnecessary loss of life to breast cancer. We aspire to normalize routine screening for early detection, dispelling the notion of breast cancer as an inevitable tragedy.
